

When DWP and SRP arrived at The Homestead on November 23, 1977 they discovered a brown envelope (a representation of the cover of which is seen below) full of newspaper clippings (representations of which are to be seen on the following fifty-two pages) that had been left for them by HLRP (WSP and HLRP having begun their Winter vacation in 1977 before Thanksgiving). Those clippings had, it appears, been gathered by HLRP's mother, Ora Esmarilda Loomis Russell, and identified by her as being "Alice Rashleigh's history of Carbondale." As the following fifty-two pages make clear, a great deal of valuable information--in addition to the Rashleigh history of Carbondale--was to be found in that brown envelope.
